

International Workshop on Industrial Multiphase Flows and Reactors

Yogyakarta, December 6-7, 2007.

Following RSCE 2007, an international workshop on industrial multiphase flows is going to be held at the same place as RSCE 2007. Multiphase flows are very frequently found in chemical engineering applications. Understanding of multiphase flows is among important keys for successful design and operation in chemical process industries. Fast development in simulation tool called computational fluid dynamic (CFD), and experimental techniques have contributed quite a lot in gaining better understanding of multiphase flows. In this workshop, various important aspects of industrial multiphase flows will be discussed. These include what CFD can do for multiphase flows and reactors, its applications, possibilities and limitations. Participants will also have chance to get in touch with CFD codes during the workshop.

The workshop will be lead by well-known international researchers and practitioners. Among those who have confirmed their participations are

1. Prof. Bengt Andersson (Chalmers University of Technology, Sweden)
2. Prof. Hallvard Svendsen (Norwegian University of Science and Technology NTNU, Norway)
3. Dr. Torbjörn Virdung (FS Dynamic, a Nordic consultant company)
4. Asc. Prof. Berend van Wachem (Chalmers University of Technology, Sweden)

This workshop is partly finaced by funds granted by the Swedish Research Council through the Swedish Research Link Program.
